OK! Keep it up & your times will get better! Mine sure did. The first time I ever got all 196 on the quiz, I had to go "off the clock" to get 'em all. THEN I noticed the option "show missing countries" - that black dot really helps; makes it hard to miss East Timor with that dot mocking you.

I don't understand how fast you people can type????! I'm quiet a fast typer, and when i'm not even stopping to think about one single country, i'm constantly writing. I can't get my time to lower than 6 min left..it's impossibole for me to write faster than that. So how is it, are you just insanely fast at typing?

report reply

♡ stevediverse +2 level 77 Oct 19, 2017

My best is 8:25 left, and ironically, I got that by slowing down my typing. When I try for speed, I make too many typos which cost me time. It's a fine line between typing fast, and typing slow enough that every keystroke contributes directly to an answer.

report reply

♡ tailsfan11 +1 level 45 Oct 21, 2017

I just set a new best at 7:41, and I agree with @stevediverse in the aspect of slower typing means better time. I make an incredible amount of typos when I type too fast.

I finally typed this entire thing fast enough! With 1 and 1/2 minutes to spare yet. Took me years to type fast enough. I memorized the countries several years ago, but can't type. In the 60s, they pulled you out of typing class and put you in French if your IQ was whatever the thought was high. All through college and law school guys typed my papers:), secretaries typed everything working, and I use my middle fingers a lot. But I can die happy....although the capitals remain unfinished because I lose time erasing strings of typos. Now we will just see.....
